BATTLESHIP SUNK.

A Terrible Calamity Off the Coast of Tripoli.

FOUR HUNDRED LIVES LOST.

The Flagship Victoria, One of the Finest Vessels in the British Navy, Run Down by the Battleship Camperdown of the Same Squadron While Maneuvering.

LONDON, June 24.—A most terrible calamity has befallen the British battleship Victoria, flagship of the Mediterranean squadron, and hundreds of lives have been lost.

The Victoria, which flew the flag of Vice Admiral Sir George Tryon, K. C. B., was run into off Tripoli by the British battleship Camperdown, also belonging to the Mediterranean squadron, and under the command of Captain Charles Johnstone.

The Victoria had an enormous hole made in her side through which the water poured in torrents. The immense hull of the Victoria at once began to settle, and before those on board of her could cast loose their small boats she went to the bottom, carrying down with her nearly all on board.

As soon as the officers of the Victoria saw that there was danger of their ship foundering orders were given to close the collision bulkheads in order to keep the water in the compartment into which the Camperdown had shoved her ram. The sailors tried to obey the order, but the ship was making water too fast to allow of closing the bulkheads, and while the men were still trying to shut them the vessel, with her immense guns and heavy top hamper, turned over and carried them down.

Some of the officers and crew managed to get out of the suction caused by the sinking vessel and were rescued. Among those lost is Vice Admiral Tryon.

The first reports of the disaster stated that about 200 men had been drowned, but later dispatches show that the loss of life was far greater, not less than 400 of the officers and crew of the Victoria having gone down with their ship.

The Victoria was a twin-screw battleship of 10,470 tons and 14,000 horse power. She mounted 15 guns.

The Camperdown is also a first class twin-screw battleship. She is of 10,600 tons and 11,500 horse power and carries 10 guns.

Admiral Sir George Tryon was commander-in-chief of the Mediterranean station. He was made a vice admiral Aug. 20, 1891.

Rear Admiral Albert H. Markham of the Trafalgar, the flagship of rear admiral in the Mediterranean, telegraphed to the admiralty from Tripoli, Syria, as follows:

"I regret to report that while maneuvering off Tripoli this afternoon the Victoria and Camperdown collided. The Victoria sank in 15 minutes in 18 fathoms of water. She lies bottom uppermost. The Camperdown's ram struck the forward of the turret on the starboard side. Twenty-one officers were drowned. Two hundred and fifty-five men were saved. The injury to the Camperdown has not yet been fully ascertained, but it is serious and will necessitate her going on dock for repairs. I propose to send the survivors to Malta."

In January of last year the Victoria ran aground off the Greek coast, near Platea, and she was only floated off after an immense amount of labor and large expense. It was said that this accident was due to carelessness.

A later dispatch from Beyroot says that the collision occurred at 5 o'clock in the afternoon, about seven miles from Tripoli. The vessels were almost at right angles when the Victoria was struck. The men on the Victoria's deck at the moment of the collision, scrambled away and were rescued by boats from the Camperdown and several other vessels. The men below had no time to reach the deck. The sudden keeling of the Victoria caused her to begin to fill immediately, and no escape was possible.

It is difficult to obtain the names of the rescued, and they are aboard several vessels and so far all efforts have been made to recovering bodies.

Shortly after the collision five bodies were taken from the water, one of them the body of the chief paymaster. They were buried with military honors at Tripoli. The Camperdown was severely damaged forward in the collision. The temporary repairs will be made and she will start for home.

It is said here that several times the Victoria has shown signs of weakness in her steering gear. One theory, that on account of this weakness she became unmanageable and could not get out of the Camperdown's way.

The News in Washington.

WASHINGTON, June 24.—The news of the sinking of her majesty's steamship Victoria caused a profound sensation at the navy department here. No marine disaster accompanied by such heavy loss of life has been known in this country for many years, the nearest in kind probably being the loss of the United States steamship Huron off Nags'.

Head, about 15 years ago. Such great disasters are fortunately rare in naval history, although the British navy has known of them, as in the case of the sinking of the Vanguard by the Iron Duke off the Irish coast, and the Germans have had a bitter experience in the case of the Grosser Kurfurst, a magnificent ironclad which was in collision and sank when attempting to enter Spithead.

HAYMARKET RIOT.

It Will Be Commemorated by a Magnificent Monument.

CHICAGO, June 24.—On Sunday at Waldheim cemetery, where, in 1887, the five Haymarket anarchists were buried, a monument will be unveiled and a series of incendiary speeches are again looked for.

The preparations for the dedication have been on a scale unprecedented in anarchist affairs, and noted men from America and Europe who profess the radical views of the Chicago groups have been invited to speak. Among those to whom invitations have been sent are Louise Michel and Prince Krapotkin. It is believed that 20,000 people will attend the ceremonies at Waldheim, which lies about nine miles west of Chicago. The men who are buried there are Parsons, Spies, Engle, Fischer and Lingg. One of the speeches is to be delivered by Mrs. Parsons, the widow of the leader of the anarchists.

The monument, designed by Albert Weinert, is a rectangular plinth of granite upon a broad, firm base and surrounded by an entablature ornament at the corners by plain Ionic volutes. Directly in front of the plinth, upon a pedestal, is a heroic group in bronze, the principal figure of which is a woman in an attitude of defiance. Her head is thrown back in a fearless manner, and the face full of fire and determination. Her right arm, with clinched hand, is crossed upon her breast, and with her left hand she is placing a laurel wreath upon the brow of a peasant, who lies dead behind her.

Bronze palm leaves are strewn upon the base of the monument at the feet of the figure, and on the lateral faces of the plinth are bronze medallion portraits of the dead anarchists. The inscription bears the last words of August Spies, "Our silence will be more powerful than words could be." The cornerstone of the monument was laid last November.

KENTUCKY MAJORS.

They Have a Misunderstanding Which May End in a Duel.

FRANKFORT, Ky., June 24.—Major John W. Headly, secretary of state, publishes a card in regard to Major H. H. Hale, state treasurer, which, under the code, calls for at least an exchange of shots.

Both gentlemen are ex-Confederate officers, game and nervy men, and are supposed to sleep with the code under their pillows. The controversy grows out of the eternal prison muddle.

The immediate occasion of the card is a statement made by Major Hale that the secretary of state misrepresented him to the newspapers.

Major Headly stamps this as a deliberate falsehood and that the author knew it was mean and false when he made it, and adds: "He can settle with me without calling on the public."

The card is a lengthy one, and there is every opportunity offered for a fight.

Your correspondent saw Major Hale, who said the secretary had magnified the matter, and that the card was in the nature of a surprise, as he did not know it was pending or coming, but if the secretary had any deep grievance and must have war, he would be accommodated.

The treasurer was cool and deliberate and he said he would determine what action to take later, as he had not had time to carefully read the card.

There is every prospect of a serious difficulty, but friends of both gentlemen will endeavor to prevent it.

FOREST FIRES.

Great Destruction Being Done in Various Parts of Colorado.

DENVER, June 24.—Forest fires are raging in various parts of the state. Bachelor, one of the big towns of the Creede community, is now in danger of complete destruction. Fresh fires are reported from several places, one having started in the mountains near Golden, which has been sending great clouds of smoke over Denver all day, almost completely hiding the sun from view and giving the sunlight such as filtered through the clouds, a bright red tint.

If no rains come within a short time the losses already great will grow to unheard of proportions. Nearly all of these fires have devoured costly sawmills and shafthouses, besides destroying the humble cabins of many miners.

The Union Pacific road from here to Leadville runs through the fires, and hundreds of men are out trying to save the railroad property.

Forced to Assign.

CINCINNATI, June 24.—The firm of Samuel W. Coffin & Albert J. Coffin, owners of the Marine Dry Dock company, in the East End, has made an assignment to Val P. Collins and Judge Peck. The assets and liabilities are about $50,000 each. The assignment was caused by the stringency in the money market and the failure of Crane & Company, the lumber men. Coffin had indorsed about $15,000 to $20,000 worth of paper for Crane & Company, and could not raise the money to meet it.

Steamer Sunk.

PORTLAND, Or., June 24.—Union Pacific steamer R. R. Thompson, which left here with a large freight and passenger list struck a snag, filled with water and went to the bottom. The loss, including repairs, will not exceed $2,000.

REMAINS A MYSTERY

The Indianapolis Tragedy an Unsolved One.

KLINE'S ASSASSIN UNKNOWN.

Mrs. Kline Tells What She Knows About It—Many Conjectures Based on Neighborhood Talk—The Authorities Hard at Work on the Few Slight Clues in Their Possession—Kline Still Alive but Unconscious.

INDIANAPOLIS, June 24.—The excitement in Brightwood over the murderous assault upon William Kline has not abated. The house is in charge of the Knights of Honor, of which order the dying man is a member. The women of the neighboring households are giving the heartbroken wife every assistance in their power.

Several times efforts have been made to rive Kline sufficiently to have him tell what he knows of the crime, lest his condition would get so that he would lose consciousness forever. He indicated that he knew what they were talking about, but answered "no" when asked if he knew who attacked him. He appeared to recognize his brother as well as his wife, also his brother-in-law and others who spoke to him during the time that he was aroused. He lay on his right side as he probably lay when the murderer found him, the evidence of this being that all the wounds are on the left side of the head.

When Kline was first found there was no blood on the bed, indicating that when he had received the first blow he must have jumped from the bed in a dazed condition, and the assailant beat him to the floor before he could resist or escape. With his enemy at the foot of the bed, Kline's left side would then still be turned to the murderous blows. Kline had been accustomed to lie with his head at the foot of the bed, as it was nearest the window and consequently the coolest place.

Mrs. Kline tells the story as follows:

"My husband came from his work as usual yesterday, and we had breakfast. The paycar was here and he would have to go down to draw his month's wages. He went about 8:30, saying before he started, 'I'm awful tired this morning; if I could get anybody to draw the money for me, I wouldn't go.' He came back in half an hour or so, told me he had paid his tobacco bill and gave me the rest of the money, $43. Then he went to the bedroom. I went with him as far as the door and he kissed me and said: 'Good night, Lou; wake me up at 5 o'clock; I worked hard last night and want a good sleep.' I then went about my ironing and was back and forth from the kitchen to the garden and shed. Soon after he had gone to bed my little girl called me and said the wringer man was at the door. I went and paid him my installment, and he said, 'Well, this is the last dollar now, and your wringer is paid for.' I told him I was glad of it, and he went away. This was at the back door. This man is the collector, and has been coming once a month. I did not see whether he had a rig or not, but my little girl says he was walking. It was not long after this that I heard my husband yawn, as he often does in his sleep, or while he is going to sleep. I went out, and when I came into the kitchen again I heard him making this noise again but it sounded more like a groan. I walked to the bedroom door to see if he was asleep, but he was not in the bed. Then I went into the room and saw him on the floor between the bed and the wall, and a big hole in his head and blood coming out of it, and blood all over the floor. I tried to scream but I couldn't move. I was paralyzed. This seemed a long time, but I guess it wasn't, and I finally got to him. I said: 'Oh, Will, who did this—tell me who did it?' but he only groaned. I tried to lift him to the bed, but my strength had failed me. I tried two or three times, but had to let him back on the floor. Then I ran out of the house screaming, and two women came and lifted him to the bed."

"While they went after the doctors and the police I tried to get him to tell me something about it. I saw then that his head was all cut up. He said he knew there was a hole in his head and he asked me if he was badly hurt. Then he lost consciousness and would only say 'no' when we asked him if he knew who hit him.

It was not long after this that I heard my husband yawn, as he often does in his sleep, or while he is going to sleep. I went out, and when I came into the kitchen again I heard him making this noise again but it sounded more like a groan. I tried two or three times, but had to let him back on the floor. Then I ran out of the house screaming, and two women came and lifted him to the bed."

"Whoever did it came in the back door. I am positive I locked the back door, as I always do as soon as he goes to bed. The hatchet this morning, and for several days, has been in the pantry, but I saw it on the shelf this morning and was afraid the children might knock it down upon them, so I took it and laid it on the kitchen table until my husband would put it in his tool chest."

"I don't know who it could be. He hadn't an enemy in the world. He is a very quiet man and sober. He does not drink, he minds his own business and stays around home when he is not at work."

"Whoever did it came in the back door. I am positive I locked the back door, as I always do as soon as he goes to bed. The hatchet this morning, and for several days, has been in the pantry, but I saw it on the shelf this morning and was afraid the children might knock it down upon them, so I took it and laid it on the kitchen table until my husband would put it in his tool chest."

"Later in the day when Mrs. Kline had recovered from her excitement, she admitted that her suspicion for the deed fell upon a certain person whom she would not name.

"If I did charge him with it," she said, "I would not put it past him to kill me." Asked if he lived in the direction that the supposed tracks of the murderer led from the house, she answered "No," and said the man she had reference to lived northeast of her house and outside of Brightwood.

The robbery theory is not upheld much, by the fact that Kline's gold watch was not taken, and the further fact that the clothes did not show they had been overhauled, but were just in the place that their owner usually left them.

The family relations are said by the neighbors to have been of a model kind, and Kline is said by his fellow-workers to be of a very inoffensive disposition. He is paying for his home in a building and loan association.

Marshal Gillespie is working upon the meager clews afforded him. He says that Mrs. McKee, who lives along the road through the woods that the murderer is supposed to have taken, says that she saw a negro hurrying in the direction of the railroad about the time that the attack took place. She refused to tell any of the particulars, but promised to talk later.

Marshal Gillespie went to see Charles Roesch, the man with whom the Klines are said to have had trouble. Roesch talked about the affair and said he was at Meadow's shoe store when he first heard of the assault. Although he and Kline had been close neighbors for three or four years, he said, he had not yet been down to the house to see him. He said, according to Gillespie's statement, that there were sometimes family jars at the Kline house, and that Mrs. Kline was a hot-tempered woman, and "got wild in the face when she was mad."

Detectives are in Brightwood and are being assisted by the marshal in their search after the murderer.

SHOCKING TRAGEDY.

A Man Kills His Child and Then Throws Himself Under Train.

ROCHESTER, June 24.—Bartholomew J. Doran, a lightweight pugilist of note, who came to this city a week ago, accompanied by his wife and a year and a half old boy, suddenly disappeared with his wife and their child, which was apparently in good health the previous day, was found dead a few hours later in the room occupied by the couple.

When Doran and his wife came here they engaged a furnished room at the residence of Mrs. Catherine Houser, 81 St. Joseph street. The child appeared to be in perfect health and was seen by Mrs. Houser playing about the house daily. At 8 o'clock in the morning Mrs. Doran came down stairs dressed for the street, and after lingering about for a few minutes was joined by her husband and the two left the house without saying anything as to when they would return or where they were going.

When at 8 o'clock they had not returned Mrs. Houser became alarmed about the child and instituted an investigation. She found the door of the room locked. After some difficulty she succeeded in opening the door and was horrified to find the dead body of the infant without a vestige of clothing upon it lying on top of a trunk.

In the room there was every evidence that the occupants had indulged in a night's carousal and made hasty departure. Cards and beer bottles were strewn about the room, and the room was otherwise in an untidy condition.

An autopsy on the child's body showed that death did not result from natural causes.

Doran's decapitated body was found in the afternoon by the tracks of the Rome, Watertown and Ogdensburg railroad, one mile east of Windsor Beach. Coroner Klein Deinst was notified, and on his arrival at the place was told by men who were watching the body that a woman, who had been with the dead man, had walked west on the track.

The coroner who had come on a light engine from Charlotte followed up the track in the direction the woman had taken. He found a woman who told him that her name was Mary Doran and that the man found dead on the track was her husband. The coroner placed her under arrest and brought her to this city, where she is now in a cell in the police station. She told the coroner and has since repeated to a reporter this story:

"My little boy was sick at night. He could not stand up and fell two or three times, cutting his head. About 9 o'clock I got him quiet and I went to sleep. I slept till early morning, when my husband woke me up and told me Phil was dead. I asked him how he came to die: what killed him, and he said, 'I killed him; I gave him morphine.'

"He said we must go away or we would be arrested. We took a Lake avenue car and went to Charlotte. Then we crossed the river and went to Windsor Beach. We spent the day walking on the shore. Bart said it would be better if we were all three dead, and wanted to get a boat to take me out on the lake to drown me. But he could not get a boat. A train came along and he threw himself under it and cut his head off. I did not know what was the matter with Bart or why he killed the boy."

Mrs. Doran is about 23 old, and not unprepossessing in appearance. She seems decidedly cheerful and indifferent considering all the circumstances. The police seem disposed to accept her story as true.

Attempted to Cross the Street.

PHILADELPHIA, June 24.—John Cramer and Charles Kenna attempted to drive across the tracks of the Reading Railroad company at the Indiana street crossing in front of an express train. The engine struck their wagon, demolishing it and instantly killing Cramer. Kenna's leg was broken and he was terribly bruised.

PREPARE to celebrate on the Fourth. The Legislature has decided to adjourn July 3.

THE golden tide has turned, $900,000 of the precious metal now being en route from London to New York. This is encouraging.

SPEAKING of the effort of certain citizens of this city to secure the Flemingsburg tobacco factory, the Times-Democrat is moved to remark: "Maysville wanted the earth on a silver waiter and tied up with a blue ribbon." Brother Duley, Maysville's business men are a little too shrewd to be played for "suckers" any more.

IN two Louisville papers, the charge is openly made that several members of the lower branch of the Legislature were bribed to vote in favor of Frankfort in the recent contest for the State Capital. The same charge is made in Lexington papers. But the House moves right along without paying any attention whatever to the accusations. There should be an investigation. Where there is so much smoke there must be some fire.

THE President seems to have taken the correct measure of Senator George Alexander, of Louisville. Mr. Alexander was an applicant for the Collectorship at the Falls City, and has spent a great part of his time in Washington City since March 4, neglecting his duties as a member of the Legislature. Mr. Cleveland evidently concluded that a man who manifested such a disregard for the duties of one position was not a fit person to be honored with another office.

SUNDAY opening at the World's Fair has proven such a failure to date that the Directors now contemplate reducing the rate of admission on the Lord's Day to 25 cents. The way the Board talked a month or so ago, one would have imagined "the workingmen" were just dying to see the exposition, and that it was impossible for them to take it in on any other day of the week. Perhaps if the cut to 25 cents in the admission price doesn't fetch "the working people," the gates will be thrown open to them free. The Directors are determined that the "working people" shall see the fair, if they have to be drummed in.

Camp Meeting.

Plymouth camp meeting will begin Sunday, June 25, at Dieterich Brothers' Grove. The opening sermon will be preached by Rev. D. W. Seals, of Georgetown. There will be good singing by the Plymouth choir, led by Miss Mary Bookman, of Oberland. The pastor extends a cordial invitation to everyone to attend this meeting. Come and help the good cause.

A Peculiar Accident.

Rev. George B. Poague, of Brooksville, aged seventy-one years, started to get up out of a chair last Sunday afternoon on the veranda at his home when his right hip suddenly gave way, and he fell to the floor. His physician found on examination that one of the bones of the hip joint was fractured. The accident will disable him for some time, and may do so permanently.

Death of a Former Citizen of Mason. The Shelbina (Mo.) Democrat contains a handsome tribute to James G. Glenn, son of Robert and Ruth Glenn, all of Mason County origin, who died June 10 at his home in Shelby County, Missouri. He was the last of the six brothers and three sisters who were born and lived for many years on Shannon, this county. He was twice married, a widower at his death, leaving no children. His county paper says: "Another of the landmarks removed—the last of the Glenns. He lived to the ripe old age of eighty-three without the shadow of a suspicion on his integrity and moral character."

THE COLLECTORSHIP

A Lexington Democrat Thinks That Bascom Will Get It,

But a "Prominent Democrat From Northern Kentucky" Will Bet Money on Shelby.

A prominent Democrat of Lexington, speaking of the Collectorship Thursday said to the Transcript of that city: "My impression is that Alf Bascom will be made Collector of the Lexington district. I am told that the impression prevails at Washington that the rank and file of the party in this district are largely for Bascom, and that he cannot be overlooked. His backing is the heaviest of all the applicants. His supporters are Senators Lindsay and Blackburn, Congressman Paynter, ex-United States Senators Williams and Machen, most of the State officials, and many others. Mr. Bascom is a man of splendid ability and business capacity, and would make a fine Collector. I cannot understand the delay in making an appointment.

A few minutes after the above conversation the Transcript met "a prominent Democrat from Northern Kentucky," who said: "You can bet money that Shelby will be the winner in the Collectorship Derby. When I met Mr. Cleveland in New York some weeks ago we talked about the Lexington Collectorship, and the President remarked that he wanted to give Colonel Breckinridge all that he wanted. I do not believe Mr. Cleveland has changed his mind. You can look out for the appointment at any time. There is a sentimental side also to this matter. You will recollect that among the gallant officers who led the mountain men of Virginia and North Carolina against Major Ferguson was Colonel Cleveland, an ancestor of President Cleveland. The other commanders, Colonels Isaac Shelby, Williams, Campbell and Winston. After this victory over the command of Ferguson, who was killed in the action, Colonel Shelby came out to Kentucky. He was the grandfather of Major Thomas Shelby, and in this Collectorship matter are again associated the names of Shelby and Cleveland. No wonder there exists some sentiment between these two men. And, further, Colonel Campbell, the above named, is one of the ancestors of Colonel W. C. P. Breckinridge."

F. B. MCNEAL, Dairy and Food Commissioner of Ohio, pronounces the so-called black pepsin made and sold by a man named Bane, under the style of "U. S. Salyx Co., New Concord, Ohio," a fraud. It can be made for 3 cents an ounce, but Bane is selling it for $2.50 an ounce.

A FEW weeks ago the steamer Sherley backed over a sailboat at Huntington, and drowned R. R. Sampson, a railroad contractor. The pilot of the Sherley was exonerated from all blame in the matter by the Marine Inspector, but the mother of Sampson will, it is said, bring suit against the steamer's owners for heavy damages.

EXTENSIVE preparations are being made for the meeting of the Second Regiment of the Uniform Rank, K. of P., at Millersburg July 4. THE young people who presented "A Woman's Devotion," at Washington Opera House last month were so encouraged by their success that they enacted it at Augusta Thursday evening before a large audience, composed of the elite of that charming town.

At the First Baptist Church to-morrow the following subjects will be discussed by the pastor, Rev. R. G. Patrick: 10:30 a. m., "Three Phases of Christian Experience;" 7:30 p. m., "Seeing the Invisible." Young People's Alliance at 6:30 p. m. Sunday school at 9 a. m. Everybody cordially invited to all these services.

MR. R. D. SOWARD, of Oak Valley, Elk County, Kansas, in renewing his subscription, says: "It affords me much pleasure to look over the Maysville Bulletin every Sunday." Mr. Soward closes by saying that crops are splendid and that he is now harvesting one hundred acres of wheat. He moved from this city a few years ago.

A REMARKABLE thing connected with the crooked work of young Searee at Lexington is that he was not caught up with sooner. He began his forgeries some years ago and although his list of victims is a long one none of them ever caught on to his villainy until it was stumbled upon by accident. Lexington bankers, building associations and business men generally must have a rather loose and careless way of conducting their affairs.

Misses Mary and Isabella Sommers, of Edinburgh, Scotland, are guests of their relative, Mr. W. W. Sibbald, of Aberdeen.

Mr. William Pillsbury, of Bowling Green, who has been visiting the family of Mrs. Keith Berry, returned home this morning.

Mr. Sim G. Rosenau and Mr. and Mrs. P. M. McCarthey, of this city, registered at the Kentucky Building of the World's Fair Thursday.

Mr. Anson Maltby, a prominent lawyer of New York City, and son-in-law of the late General John C. Breckinridge, is visiting his aunt, Miss Mary W. Marshall, at Washington. He is on his return East from Chicago.

Twelve Years After.

Twelve years ago John Robinson's circus was at Louisa, twenty miles up the Big Sandy river. Peter Scaggs, then a man of middle age, bought two tickets, expecting to take his "best girl" to the show. On the eventful morning there was a quarrel, and Peter, in consequence, "saw the elephant" alone.

The Catlettsburg Democrat says he placed the extra ticket in his pocket book, and for twelve long years kept it as a reminder of a lost sweetheart. On June 17th he came down to see the show at Catlettsburg and presented this ticket to the gate-keeper who demanded to know where he got it. "I paid my money for it twelve years ago when this show was at Louisa," replied Uncle Peter. "Well, my old friend, you look like an honest man and I guess the ticket is all right; pass in," was the reply made, and Uncle Peter waltzed in feeling that if he had lost the old girl, he had saved the money paid out for her edification.

Trouble Between State Officials.
Major John W. Headley, Secretary of State, published a card yesterday in which he characterizes a certain statement made by State Treasurer Hale as "a deliberate falsehood." He adds that Major Hale knew it was mean and false when he made it, and closes by saying: "He can settle with me without calling on the public."

Major Hale says the Secretary has magnified the matter, and that the card was in the nature of a surprise, as he did not know it was pending or coming, but if the Secretary had any deep grievance and must have war, he would be accommodated.

Trouble is feared between the two.

Tried to Strangle Herself.

Rosa Mays was jailed yesterday afternoon for drunkenness, disorderly conduct and using insulting language. Shortly afterwards, Jailer Kirk was attracted by the creams of some other women who were in the cell-room. On entering he found that Rosa was trying to commit suicide. She had drawn a handkerchief tightly around her neck, and was black in the face when Mr. Kirk reached her. She would no doubt have succeeded in ending her existence had it not been for the cries of the other prisoners.

Didn't Lease the Convicts.

The proposed lease of 400 convicts at Frankfort to the Mason & Foard Company is off.

Treasurer Hale demanded that the contract based on the proposition of the company should conform to the law governing contracts between landlord and tenant. The company objected to this, and insisted on some stipulated agreement in place of the law.

Treasurer Hale declined to go outside the law and so the deal is off.

KNOWLEDGE

Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many, who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.

Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all druggists in 50c and $1 bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., only, whose name is printed on every package, also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.

Complete Manhood and how to attain it.

At last a medical work that tells the causes, describes the effects, points the remedy. This is scientifically the most valuable, artistically the most beautiful, medical book that has appeared for years; 96 pages, every page bearing a half-tone illustration of some of the most interesting traits, as Nervous Development, Intensity, Stability, Development, Varicose, The Husband, Those intending Marriage, etc. Every man who would know the grand truths, the plain facts, the old secrets, and the new discoveries of medical science, as applied to married life, who would stand for pass fail and avoid future pitfalls, should write for this wonderful little book. It will be sent free, under seal. Address the publishers, Erie Medical Co., Buffalo, N.Y.
